Balance and relaxation

Emma can support a variety of work situations; focussed work or more relaxed collaboration and communication. Emma's beautiful design allows the user's pelvis to rotate forwards naturally and allows the user's spine to adopt a naturally balanced position. Meanwhile the upper body is beautifully supported allowing the body to achieve the best of natural balance and relaxation

The lines between the workplace and home are being blurred more and more, with many more people adopting a 'hybrid' style of work. However, working from home has never been easier or better than with the Emma chair to support and comfort you through the stresses and strains of the modern 'agile' work style.

Whether working at home or in the office, the Emma chair is able to sit harmoniously in any environment, providing an effortless sense of style with its seemingly simple design and clean lines

In the office - the beautifully engineered multipurpose Emma chair – with swivel, tilt and height adjustment – has been designed with people in mind and for places and situations that would be made better with a more 'friendly', more casual, yet comfortable place to sit.

Emma a truly beautiful 'hybrid' task chair

Emma's waterfall-edge seat design reduces any impact to the back of the knees. A contoured backrest fits naturally into your body's curves and it flexes to follow your body's typical hip rotation, cradling the users back for increased lumbar support.

And of course, you can move freely and comfortably, with no adjustment required.
